Get Your Heart Into It . . . Wear Red on February 1, 2013 Jefferson County Public Health reminds everyone that Friday, February 1, 2013 is National Wear Red Day. Wearing something red on February 1, is a simple, powerful way to raise awareness of heart disease and stroke. Jefferson County Public Health is organizing a photo opportunity at the Jefferson County Administration and Courts Facility, 100 Jefferson County Parkway in Golden on Friday, February 1, 2013 at 12 noon. Please join us and wear your favorite red.

Cardiovascular disease (heart disease & stroke) is the leading cause of death in Jefferson County and the nation. The good news is heart disease can often be prevented. Tackling known risk factors such as tobacco use, high cholesterol, high blood pressure, diabetes, obesity and inactive lifestyle can greatly reduce risks for illness and death from heart disease.

It's important that individuals talk to a medical provider about risk factors, screening tests, lifestyle changes, and treatment services to prevent heart disease.

Columbine Knolls HOA

Grandfathering of RVs Extended for 6 Months In October, the CKHA Board was presented with a petition asking for the Board to extend the grandfathering of registered RVs for a minimum of one year in order to allow for more time for the covenants to be amended. At the November meeting, the Board voted to extend the grandfathering of registered RVs for 6 months (until the end of July 2013). The extension allows for the neighborhood and the CKHA Board to continue to solicit input, specifically through the special January meeting on RVs that is scheduled for 6:00 p.m. on January 8th (see the separate article). Note that this extension is only applicable to existing grandfathered RVs; the covenants remain in effect for all homeowners that did not register their RV during the grandfathering process five years ago.

Columbine West Civic Association Newsletter

The holiday season is always a magical time of year. Blinking and assorted colored lights and shimmering icicles that cascaded down from the eaves of houses in Columbine West provided a bright, happy, and inviting feeling. Candy canes seemed to dance around the yards as the inflatable characters swayed in the breeze. It's as though those neighbors who decorated were opening up their homes and hearts and sharing their holiday spirit with all their neighbors so all could enjoy. The aroma of fresh baked goodies wafted through the air and some treats even made their way into neighbor's gift bags. As a famous saying goes, "It is better to give than to receive".

Driving into or out of the neighborhood at night with the entrances dressed in garland and all the houses lit up brought smiles to our faces, warmed our hearts, and made us proud to live where we do. It takes us back to our childhood memories when our imaginations ran wild with thoughts of hearing Santa and his reindeer on the roof or the anticipation of what was in those presents under the tree. And those "visions of sugarplums dancing in our heads" gave us a temporary reprieve from today's stresses of trying to make a decent living, provide for our families, and balance work and family commitments. Oh, to be young and free again!

CWCA once again sponsored the lighting contest and awarded $50 gift certificates to 2 lucky households. Due to an early newsletter deadline that was prior to judging, winners will be announced in the February newsletter. Thank you to those who brightened our December nights and took us back in time, even if it was only for a short while.

Westbury

Congratulations-Kudos-Hats Off-Well-Done! BUSTED! Kudos and congratulations to our neighbors and the Jefferson County Sheriff's Department! It seems that a few misguided youth find it sporting to ring doorbells and run. They've been spotted several times by neighbors, and a Jefferson County Sheriff's deputy, keeping a close eye on our Westbury neighborhood in response to a neighbor's non-emergency call, picked a couple of them up in the wee hours of Saturday, December 15th. They'll be charged both with curfew violations, and misdemeanor harassment. (It's not nice to ring doorbells at 1:30 in the morning.)

Hopefully meeting the judge, a little community service, and some long talks with their parents, will put an end to this "sport," and help them find more productive ways to spend their time. Kudos to both our deputy, and to those neighbors who kept their eyes open, gathered information, kept one another informed, and called the cops at the appropriate times. Next time you see a Jeffco Sheriff's deputy in the neighborhood, please pass along our thanks for all their help.

Remember, if anything out of the ordinary causes you even a little bit of concern, they want to hear about it. Their 24/7 non-emergency number is 303-277-0211. Of course if there's an emergency, you're strongly encouraged to dial 911 right away. Thanks for watching out for one another. That's what good neighbors do.

Williamsburg II News

President's Message Happy New Year! Welcome 2013. Our lives return to routine. The holiday décor comes down and is once again securely stored away. What often feels like one of the longest months of the year begins as the celebrations and festivities have faded away. But we did have fun last month. Most of us ate and drank too much. Many of us attended the HOA sponsored annual Holiday Hayride. Always nice to see neighbors gather to enjoy caroling and refreshments and visiting with Santa was an added plus for many of the kids. Thanks to all who participated. Once again, five homes in our community received recognition for their holiday decorating efforts during the annual Holiday Lighting Event. Congratulations to them and to all those in the neighborhood that helped make our community look so festive. Looking ahead to the New Year, the annual Easter Egg Hunt will take place mid to late March. Outdoor Movie Night will return in the summer. Watch for more information to come in future newsletters. Have ideas for other community events? Contact us and let us know! The Board is looking for a volunteer to fill one open seat on the Board. Please give some consideration to filling the vacancy and participating. Williamsburg II remains a much desired community in which to live. Thank you to all who contribute, cooperate and work hard to keep it that way.

Woodbourne

DA Warns Instagram Users to Consider Safety Issues The First Judicial District Attorney's Child Sex Offender Internet Investigations (CHEEZO) Unit is warning children and adults about safety issues when using Instagram and other social networking sites.

Instagram enables users to take a photo, apply a digital filter to it, and share it on a variety of social networking services. Instagram is very popular with people using iPods, iPADS, iPhones and Android phones. Users can follow their friends, or even people they don't know, in a manner similar to Twitter.

The CHEEZO Unit has received complaints from young teens concerned about Instagram, a popular online photo-sharing and social networking site.

Complaints made to the DA's CHEEZO Unit concern strangers, anyone unknown to the user, leaving inappropriate comments on photos posted by teens. Many of the comments from strangers are unsuitable, sexual or graphic in nature, and may be directed specifically to the young users.

As with most social networking sites, users sign up to participate in Instagram. They are asked for a user name. Many times teenagers are using their real first and last name. There is also a field for teens to provide their cell phone numbers. This information becomes public to anyone who visits the site and provides strangers with cell phone number, another way to contact kids.

"Teenagers, and adults as well, should be very cautious when joining sites such as Instagram," warns District Attorney Pete Weir. "Consider the personal information you are posting online. This information, as well as photos, becomes public for anyone to see."

CHEEZO'S number one message for online and cell phones continues to be that if you don't know someone face-to-face, you shouldn't communicate directly or indirectly with them. Teens and adults are encouraged to set privacy settings to prevent strangers from viewing your information.

Parents need to be vigilant in checking the apps on their kids' electronics to ensure they are not compromising their safety with personal information. CHEEZO encourages parents to keep an open dialogue with their kids about the sites they visit and the information they post.

Cyberbullying: More real than you think By Sheriff Ted Mink— These days, it can be difficult to surf the Internet without stumbling onto rude or offensive posts. Comments can range from criticism to sarcasm to downright anger. They appear to be the new no-holds-barred world of nameless, faceless, anonymous individuals who slash and burn their way through the Internet with no apparent repercussions. While many people can simply shrug off these kinds of comments as overactive emotion, or egos out of control, children, preteens and teens can be especially vulnerable.

Sheriff Ted Mink

Profile of a cyberbully In the brave new world of social media, a cyberbully has taken hold. Take YouTube, for example, where people of all ages can put their talents on display. While the ease and accessibility of the Internet allow videos to quickly go viral, these same qualities also allow a cyberbully to spread comments on a mass scale. Instead of receiving encouragement, people eager to share their passion receive mockery. Trolling, or throwing insulting and slanderous statements for no other reason than one's own amusement, is actually encouraged. Unlike in the real world, cyberbullies feel they can act according to their whims without societal conscience.

Perspective of the victim There is a great variance of age and sensitivity of users on the Internet. A young child uploading a silly YouTube video of himself rapping, for example, may receive unintended backlash. While the child may be sharing a passion for music bullies may see the video as an opportunity to be cruel. Unfortunately, the child might read these comments, which, if taken personally, can be traumatic.

Cyberbullying can be even more pervasive and unchecked because of its link to the real world. Often, online personal attacks are actually extensions of bullying at school. So the same child who is the target of cyberbullies may also be the victim of schoolyard bullies. This dual threat can compound the victim's trauma. Besides hurtful comments, cyberbullying can take the form of embarrassing photos, malicious jokes, threatening emails or texts and even computer viruses.

Law Enforcement's scope The growing medium of the Internet is still novel in terms of the law. The difference between cyberbullying and cyberharassment is age; parties must both be underage to qualify as bullying. The seriousness of the occurrences is broken down into four main categories of threats: the kind, the frequency, the source and the nature. The kinds of threats can include lewd language, insulting or threatening a child. The frequency of the threats is determined by their increasing nature or if an outside third party becomes involved. The source of the threats is determined by your child suspecting who's bullying them, or if a stranger may be involved. Lastly, the nature of the threats may be the clearest indicator of a potential crime. These may include breaking into an account, stealing passwords, posting sexual images, sharing personal information about a minor or masquerading as a child. As the threat levels escalate a better case can be made for law enforcement to pursue.

A solution Only one in ten victims will inform a parent or trusted adult of abuse. Unfortunately, cyberbullying is not easy to trace. For starters, comments can be posted anonymously. Also, preteens and teens tend to fight for privacy on their phones and online. One clue to suspect a child could be the victim of cyberbullying can be a sudden change in the child's behavior.

One of the best recommendations is to offer unconditional emotional support to the child. It can be easy for adults to disregard cyberbullying and advise children not to take the comments seriously. But with the pervasiveness of technology, a child's well-being can be severely affected if adults are indifferent. Modeled after the Crime Stoppers program, Safe2Tell allows students, teachers, parents, or anyone else to anonymously call (1-877-542-SAFE) with information about a crime that has already happened, or one they fear will happen. Cyberspace can be a risky place if not navigated with some forethought. As always, the best prevention is open communication, allowing children to feel free to come to you with any questions or concerns.

GRANT HELPS CLOSE THE LITERACY GAP A $25,000 grant is making it possible to close the literacy gap for some of Jeffco's most at-risk students. The New York-based Leon Lowenstein Foundation's grant will support The Jefferson Foundation's Jeffco Summer of Early Literacy (J-SEL) program at Swanson, Edgewater, Molholm and Lasley elementary schools. "We will help close persistent income-related literacy achievement gaps with these grant funds, and we are incredibly grateful," said Katie Tiernan, Jefferson Foundation's executive director. J-SEL provides six weeks of additional, quality literacy instruction to 420 low-income K-3 students each year. Results from summer 2012, the program's first year, show that students not only maintained their literacy skills over summer, but actually improved. J-SEL is partially funded through grants from the Mile High United Way Social Innovation Fund and the Salazar Family Foundation. "The Lowenstein Foundation gift puts us within $15,000 of raising all needed funding for the 2013 J-SEL program," said Tiernan.
